[Welcome to NEEHU!

Thank you for joining us this weekend as we explore more of the possibilities of hypnosis together!

Our community faced a huge challenge in the past few months when FetLife deleted all groups containing the word “hypnosis.” In an instant, without warning, years of discussions, events, writings, and the groups that connect many in our community were gone without a trace. Minutes afterwards, the community was coming together on Skype, spreading word about what happened over social media. In the hours and days following, we organized into teams to work on re-creating that which was lost. We were confused, shocked, angry, but united in our love for the community that we had built over years. One of the teams that formed was the Advocacy team, where many talented individuals with diverse backgrounds came together to work closely with the National Coalition for Sexual Freedom (NCSF) to speak up for our kink. The NCSF worked with FetLife and was instrumental in negotiating the restoration of our hypnosis content on FetLife, and to make changes that enable more people to find out about hypnosis as a kink.

And now, here we are, together for this weekend despite one of our main communication outlets being gone during peak planning time. Thank you to everyone who helped spread information when our content was gone from Fetlife! Your efforts even helped a few new people find NEEHU and our community. Please work hard to help our newer folks feel like they are part of our crazy and wonderful family.

New? Start here!

Congratulations on making it to NEEHU! We want to make sure you have a wonderful time, so here are some things we think will help you get started:

1. Look for the purple classes on the schedule! They're designed for beginners. The green ones are for everyone, including you!
2. Don't be afraid to ask questions! We love answering them! There will be people wearing "mentor" and "ask me anything" ribbons.
3. Take advantage of Mentored Trance Area in the Main room! There will be mentors available to practice with throughout the con.
4. Take care of yourself! We have food and snacks and water for you. Sleep and a shower are an essential part of every day. If you are hungry, drop by the kitchen and grab a bite. If you have dietary issues, ask a kitchen staffer, we will find something you can eat!
5. You are free to ask anyone to do anything. You are not obliged to do anything with anyone. Others may say no to you; accept that.

Definitions of difficulty levels:

All levels—Everyone will enjoy this class!

Beginner—New to hypnosis, 0-5 sessions, no knowledge is assumed

Intermediate—Some hypnosis experience, 5-50 sessions knowledge of basic induction techniques and terminology expected. (This will be you at the end of this conference!)

Advanced—50+ sessions, comfortable with many inductions/suggestion techniques, knowledge of how to handle abreactions.

A couple years later, he got involved with the New England Hypnosis Group (NEHG) as it got started, then the NYC Hypnosis group at its beginnings. Since before he learned of his interest in hypnosis, he's always loved people watching, getting reactions, and teasing in general, and his style with erotic hypnosis tends to reflect this. A lot. Audience/Experience level: Everyone, Advanced (50+ sessions, comfortable with many induction/suggestion techniques)

May contain: Hypnosis demo, Emotional intensity, Consensual non-consent

A common fantasy among hypnokinksters is for a hypnotist to have such strong control over the hypnotee as to make them do anything, even things they don't want to do. Common knowledge among this hypnosis community is "hypnosis can't make you do things you don't want." These two ideas can and do coexist; welcome to the realm of consensual non-consent. This class is foremost about CNC in a broader context. We'll talk about how to negotiate a CNC dynamic that leaves both you and your partner(s) fulfilled and okay with what happened. We will cover some of varieties on the grand spectrum of consensual non consent dynamics as well as the risks and safety mechanisms inherent to each. We will talk about how to recover from mistakes. We will also discuss how to give and accept suggestions that the hypnotee doesn't (strictly speaking) want.

Continuing the Conversation: Education & Counseling as Tools to Prevent Consent Injuries (EnScenic)

Time: Fri 10:00AM in Roundtable Room (Discussion)

Audience/Experience level: Everyone, community leaders, event planners, advocates, All levels

May contain: this could be a volatile discussion about a controversial subject

The ongoing conversation in the recreational/erotic hypnosis community about negotiation and consent thrives as we, as a community, strive to educate each other, newcomers, and the general public about our often misunderstood kink. One result of this is a greater focus on safety through the identification and removal of predators. What happens, though, when someone new and uneducated makes a mistake? One gut reaction might be to vilify them and cast them out as unforgivable rather than provide education and counseling; in this class we will discuss the ramifications of this type of action and how it ultimately damages the community at large rather than helping it, as well as how community leaders and event planners can use an effective educational strategy to integrate people back into the community.

Words are important - the common, basic words used when talking about hypnosis (or doing it), and the precise language used for maximum effect for both hypnotists and subjects. But simply choosing your own words carefully isn't always sufficient; many of those words frequently used mean very different things to different people. This lecture and discussion is about how to bridge those differences in meaning, be more flexible about the language you use with a partner, why it's important to take the time to discuss and what certain words mean to them beforehand, and how to deal with verbal limits.

In audio performances of any kind, all nuance and context is given by your voice alone. The most realistic performances come from those who can become their character; those who can convince you they believe in what they say. However, why not take that a step further? With hypnosis, you can project yourself into your character's mind and, for a time, believe you ARE the character: living in the moment, experiencing what they do. Join Calico as she demonstrates means to try this by yourself or with another's help as well as the variety of characters you can get into. Of the ages we would be looking at, usually is either young enough to not be considered an adult, or old enough to need other adults around to provide care. Audience/Experience level: Everyone, Intermediate (5-50 sessions, know some induction/suggestion techniques)

When most people begin to fold hypnosis into their various kinky activities, the induction is very prominent. And then the others in the room with you start to slip into trance too, and they're saying a mantra. It's only too late that you realize, you're saying the mantra as well. We think those stories are hot, too, and this is our attempt to make it happen. We will send you down as deep into a group trance as we can, and bring you back safely. Will you be changed? There's only one way to find out. There is live and pre-taped component to this. If you would like to know the phrases used in the brainwashing in advance, contact the instructors.

Most of us have heard these sentiments, from our subjects or friends or even our own brains. This kind of thinking can lead to, at best, self-doubt, and at worst, someone deciding that hypno just isn't for them. How can we as 'tists make sure that our subjects have a successful and empowering trance experience, and come away from it knowing that hypnosis is a thing that they can do? In this class, we'll explore this very question, and discuss the things that 'tists can do to help their subjects succeed. Some of the topics we'll cover: pre-talk and negotiation; safety; choosing the right inductions and triggers; and how to respond when your subject says "That didn't work!"
